

Of Course

You can find Boys' Clothing at almost any clothing store, but—

And there's where the trouble comes—some people think a boy does not amount to a row of pins.

Teach the boy pride, good manners, and give him good clothes to wear; see if it don't help to make a manly fellow of him.

Bring him here and let him revel among the new styles, and it won't take him long to "catch on."

FINE ENTERTAINMENT BY ALABAMA MINSTRELS

BOYS FROM THE BATTLESHIP GAVE PERFORMANCE EQUAL TO THAT OF PROFESSIONALS.
EVERY SEAT IN THE HOUSE WAS TAKEN.

The fourth annual performance of the U. S. S. Alabama's minstrels, in honor of Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans, commander-in-chief, was given at the opera house last night, and every seat was occupied from the best to the cheapest.

The entertainment was a complimentary one, but it may be said with truth that many of the performances presented, put up by some of the companies of national reputation would have looked like the proverbial thirty-cents alongside of last night's entertainment.

In every amateur performance there is, more or less, a certain amount of allowance made, and short-comings are overlooked, but the "Alabama Minstrels" ask no allowance; they "put up" a performance that is equal, if not better than most standard minstrel companies which tour the country during the regular season.

The performance which these boys offered last year, is still fresh in the minds of most of the theatre patrons of Pensacola, and many of them were prepared to pronounce it perfect; yet this year's performance was considerably ahead of it. There was not a hitch—not a single dull moment, not an old joke, nor an unpopular song. Everything moved off as if these boys had been in training for years, and the usually conspicuous stamp of the amateur was absent.

Ensign G. B. Landenberger, president of the organization, acted as interlocutor. If there had been any chance for errors, his ready wit and presence of mind would have soon patched it in such a way that the audience would have been none the wiser.

Following is the list of officers of the organization and program in full:

Ensign G. B. Landenberger—President.

F. T. Walling—Secretary.

W. T. Chambers—Business Manager.

C. T. Trainor—Stage Director.

F. A. Ksander—Stage Electrician.

E. Elkenrodt—Leader of Orchestra.

PART I.

Opening Chorus—"Carry me back to Old Virginia"—Entire Company.

Song—"All of the while Babe"—C. T. Trainor.

Song—"A little boy called taps"—C. White.

Song—"Tain't no disgrace to run when you is skeered"—J. Cristy.

Song—"Somebody's waiting for Me"—F. T. Walling.

Song—"Make a fuss over Me."—C. White.

Song—"Won't you fondle Me."—C. White.

Song—"Spirit of '76"—Steffens, Circle.

Interlocutor—Ensign Landenberger.

Tambos—C. T. Trainor, Wegat, Stevens.

Bones—Jacobs, Cristy, Parkins.

Intermission 10 minutes.

Selections by the Alabama's Orchestra.

PART II.

W. T. Chambers—Our well known Irish Comedian.

The Alabama's Mandolin and Guitar Club—Lieut. A. P. Crist, Midshipman E. L. McSheehy, W. Stephens, G. Mutchler, J. J. Uhlen, H. L. Goettman, F. Hinman, G. L. Nottage, E. H. Sorcho.

Chambers & Legros—Slight-of-Hand, Tricks of Magic, Juggling, introducing their Electric Illuminated Club Swinging Act.

C. T. Trainor—With a Little Hebrew Foolishness.

By special request we again present our Side Splitting one-Act Farce, entitled:

"Jealousy."

CAST.

Dan Duff, looking for a job; Tough Tom, the butcher; Mrs. McGinnis, Irish Washerwoman—W. T. Chambers.

Squire Hardcastle, who suspects his wife—C. T. Trainor.

Mrs. Hardcastle, another victim of jealousy—F. T. Walling.

Polly, a maid—H. E. Fox.

Jake, a servant—W. T. Stevens.

Every member was vigorously applauded and the audience seemed anxious to show its full appreciation of the performance as it was presented.

Lack of space precludes a lengthy description of the performance, but it is not saying too much to venture the assertion that the entertainment was thoroughly enjoyed by every one present.

Death was due, it is stated this morning, to a fracture of the skull. He was surrounded by friends and relatives when death occurred.

According to statements, several bluejackets engaged in a fight in a saloon on Zarragossa street, and afterwards left the saloon. One of the men, who seemed crazed with drink, in passing Mann, who was several yards west of the saloon, gave him a blow in the face. The young man fell and his skull was fractured. Afterwards it required the combined efforts of a number of bluejackets to keep the man who delivered the blow from further striking the prostrate man.

Mann was taken to the hospital and shortly after 4 o'clock expired, death being due to concussion of the brain.

MANY NOVICES INITIATED BY SHRINERS LAST NIGHT

ENJOYABLE DAY SPENT BY THE VISITORS, WHO GAVE THE LOCAL NOVICES A TASTE OF WHAT IT IS TO BECOME A FULL-FLEDGED SHRINER.

Many novices were initiated into the Arabic Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine last night. In fact it was early this morning before the work had been completed, although it commenced at an early hour last night. Those novices who went through the ordeal will remember it for some time to come.

Song of the Nobles.
"In the Good Old Mystic Shrine,
"In the Good Old Mystic Shrine,
There was something doing
When I got mine!

That twenty-six is the double extract of hard luck thirteen, not only double, but quadruple, was evidenced when twenty-six trembling novices presented themselves on the twenty-sixth day of April, to the Arab Patrol of the Morocco Temple Caravan and solicited their protection across the hot sands of the desert until they reached the green, grassy grass and the cooling, refreshing shades of the Oasis which marks the home of Mecca and the true believers thereof.

That the journey was attended by many hardships and heartrending trials was attested by the mouthpiece breakfasts served in the arnica scented homes of the novices mentioned below. The ear of the Arab is ever attractive to the cry of distress and he hears from afar the wall of those who would partake of his salt and break of his bread, as Charlie Gray said when he saw a Noble on crutches. Great goodness, even the halt and afflicted have responded to our cry.

All during the day the novices were currying favor with the team, and it was amusing to hear how sick Sol Cahn had been and that Will Dalley's physician had cautioned him against anything that would tend to increase his heart's pulsation. It must be said to the credit of Charlie Bonacker that he kept out of sight during the day trusting that during the excitement he would be overlooked and thus escape.

cape. Joe Johnson, armed with a pocketful of loose change sought to ingratiate himself with such as were afflicted with a thirst, while Doctor Smith was the personification of a quiet dignity, of which he was stripped at the door of the Temple.

Only one accident marred the pleasure (?) of the occasion. Gibb Fell will file a claim with the Accident Insurance company for the loss of two fingers. So it was not as serious as it might have been.

An invitation was read from Noble Bernard Lusher, potentate of Abba Temple, at Mobile, Ala., inviting all Nobles to participate in a Ceremonial Session of that Temple to-night, and about 30 will leave on the morning train and anticipate one continuous round of pleasure.

The following was all that our reporter was able to obtain concerning the ceremonies:

The Banquet.

After the conclusion of the initiatory ceremonies at the hall the Shriners, numbering over eighty, proceeded to the Kandy Kitchen, where an excellent repast was served. This occurred this morning at an early hour, and was one of the enjoyable events of the trip, as is attested by the menu published above. The Chaffers's orchestra, composed of six pieces, rendered excellent music during the banquet.
